

Parisians had a brand new sensation recently when American soldiers and sailors on duty in France started up a baseball league. This shows the opening game which was played on the Bois de Boulogne when the long range shells were falling in another quarter of the city.
Photo from International Film.

This is a picture that our war experts will examine closely. It shows a German tank captured by the French, virtually undamaged. The construction and design of the monster differ materially from French and English machines.
French official photo.

A new picture of Secretary of State Lansing, whose firm reply to Germany's demand for the release of Rintelen, the notorious spy, evoked national approval.
Photo by Reckman.

The celebration of Mothers' Day at the Officers' Club in Paris. The officer in the right foreground is a Russian General who is loyal to the Allies. He is talking to Ambassador Sharp (derby). Note number of American officers.
Copyright, International Film.

The funeral of James Gordon Bennett in Paris. Large crowds gathered in the streets to watch the cortege pass, and France also paid official honors. The picture presents the scene in front of the church where services were held.
Photo by International Film.